Curiosity First

A simple yet powerful inquiry-based approach that engages people in a learning journey by sparking curiosity and participation.

Key steps

Start each session with two key questions: What do you already know about this topic? (activates prior knowledge) and What questions do you have? (fosters an open, curiosity-driven space).

Have participants brainstorm individually, writing answers on post-its or a Miro board, and display them in a shared visual.

Use responses dynamically throughout the session to ensure engagement and real-world application.

Check in at the end by reviewing the questions with coloured dots (red = still unanswered, green = answered) to visualise learning progress and address remaining gaps.
